Marie Spenwyn

Year of Call: 1999

A well-established criminal defence practitioner with an excellent reputation for her thorough preparation, client care and persuasive advocacy in all areas of criminal defence work, principally:

- Murder, Manslaughter and Serious Violence
- Serious Sexual Offences
- Drugs Offences, Organised Crime and Firearms
- Fraud and Financial Crime

MURDER, MANSLAUGHTER AND ATTEMPTED MURDER

Frequently instructed in high-profile murder, manslaughter and attempted murder cases, Marie is specialist criminal defence practitioner who has developed a particular expertise in dealing with 'difficult' and vulnerable clients particularly young defendants and those with mental health problems. She regularly appears in the most serious cases of violent crime (murder, manslaughter, wounding with intent) often involving psychiatric defences and mental health disposals.

SERIOUS SEXUAL OFFENCES

Marie has significant experience in conducting proceedings concerning sexual offences across the spectrum of serious sexual offences to include historic and multi-handed cases. Her case preparation is second to none and she is often selected to deal with cases on her ability to effectively engage with clients. Increasingly instructed in cases involving serious sexual allegations against young and very young defendants; details of which are kept confidential given reporting restrictions. These cases regularly involve vulnerable witnesses, use of s28 pre-recorded cross-examination and use of intermediaries. Marie is trained to deliver Vulnerable Witness Training and has done so on a number of occasions including for Gray's Inn.

DRUGS OFFENCES, ORGANISED CRIME AND FIREARMS

Frequently instructed in cases concerning firearms, organised drugs offences, county lines prosecutions, and multi-handed drugs conspiracies. These increasingly involve trafficking, modern slavery and the use of the National Referral Mechanism.

R v Zakaria Bulhan [2017] Central Criminal Court Heavily publicised incident concerning attacks on members of the public in Russell Square attacks August 2016 leading to the death of an American tourist and the stabbing of five further people. The attacks were originally thought to be terrorist in nature although in due course it became clear the defendant was suffering from a severe mental illness. The defendant was in Broadmoor in the lead-up to the trial. Prosecution ultimately accepted pleas to manslaughter on the grounds of diminished responsibility and s18 wounding. There were significant medical and legal arguments concerning whether the appropriate sentence should be a hospital order pursuant to section 37/41 MHA 1983 or life imprisonment. Ultimately a hospital order with an indefinite restriction was imposed.
